“Esta No Es Una Canción Diplomática” is the new collaboration between Lacandona and Morodo—a protest anthem with a fighting spirit, blending Roots and Dubstep.

From Argentina to Spain, this track denounces alienating routines, social control, and the system that oppresses us. It is not commercial, it is not neutral—it is conscious fire to break chains. I am the WARRIOR.

Produced by Juanchi Baleirón, Juan Borsato, and Julián Lacandona.

Mixed by Diego "Chapa" Blanco.

Mastered by Ariel Colla.

Video by Celeste Pagano.

biography

Julián Lacandona is an Argentine musician and composer with a long career. Having settled a year ago in Santiago de Compostela, he came to Galicia following in the footsteps of his grandparents. Julián has released three albums: “Soles de Resistencia”, “No hay tregua” y “El Conjuro”. To this, he adds dozens of shows, tours, and international collaborations.

Influenced by Manu Chao, Bob Marley, Calle 13, Fito Páez, and Spanish singer and songwriters, Lacandona brings his unique musical blend: Reggae, Rock, Rap, and Song, infused with profound, sensitive, and edgy lyrics, carrying a strong social imprint that awakens awareness with combative chants and urban poetry.

Artistic creativity and raw honesty go hand in hand, with shows where the energy transcends and stirs both body and heart—a combination that bursts on stage with unusual force.

Live, Lacandona performs with drums, percussion, guitars, bass, keyboards, and horns. Yet he can also adapt to a more intimate format, playing with just his guitar and creating a deeper connection with the audience.
